MORE BUSHEL PER ACRE AT LESS COST UNDER PROPER DIRECTIONS

Under the above title the Journal and Tribune, Knoxville, one of the leading dailies of East Tennessee, recently published the following editorial regarding the action of the Anderson County Court in voting an appropriation for a county agent:

"The Anderson County Court recently showed an admirable spirit of progress when it voted an appropriation of $1,500 for a county demonstration agent. That is the kind of action which counts for something with farmers.

"More bushels per acre at less cost, returning to the soil at least as much as is taken from it, is the secret of successful farming, for in agriculture success rests not upon a single season but rather upon a succession of good harvests, with enough to feed the family and the stock and a surplus for money each year.

"The county demonstration agent is one of the most valuable assets a county can provide for its rural population. These trained men go about teaching the farmers better and easier methods of planting and cultivation, showing them what best can be produced in their soil and how to fertilize the earth properly and giving suggestions as to profitable marketing.

"Most of the counties of the state now have demonstration agents. Those which have not should get into line. This is not an experiment. It is a practical, proven method of improving agriculture.

"The farmer usually gets it in the neck, yet we are dependent upon him for the foundation of whatever prosperity any of us may realize. Forty per cent of the people of the United States live on farms. If they lack prosperity, all of us will slump and suffer, and strain and pull as we may we cannot get out of the box, so long as the farmer remains enmeshed in the mire.

"The Journal and Tribune would offer its congratulations to the members of the county court of Anderson County who took this progressive step and earnestly urge all others which do not now provide similar help for their farmer constituents to realize the necessity of doing so."

Anderson County officials like those of several other Tennessee counties some months ago, felt that it was necessary in face of the grave business conditions to economize by dispensing with the county agent, which they have now discovered was a serious mistake.

Face to face with the necessity of diversifying without exact knowledge of what crops to plant, or how to go about planting them; with the absolute necessity of cutting the cost of production from one-half to two-thirds below that of last year; not knowing just how to reduce this cost of cutting without reducing the yield; with the importance of selling every farm product at the very highest possible price, without a definitely organized co-operative selling association; with the desire to increase livestock on the farm without a fair knowledge of breeding, care, and feeding; and of disease control; with mortgages or notes falling due on land and equipment without knowing how to get extension of such, there has never been a time when a county agent has been so vitally necessary to farmers of any county, said the Progressive Farmer recently.

Early in 1921 sentiment was intense over the state for a most rigid economy in all county expenditures, on account of the increase of the county tax rate and depreciation of the selling value of farm products. Some few counties thought it wise to economize by dispensing with county agents, but during the past few months there has been a marked change in the sentiment. There seems to have been a feeling developed that if counties ever needed an agent they need him now, during the critical period for agriculture, says C. E. Brehm, assistant director Division of Extension. Recently four counties have appropriated for the work and applied for agents. It is significant that these counties have not had agents for several years and they all are counties that would not appropriate for the work were they not convinced that the work is worth while to the welfare of the county. Have you a county agent? If not, the Division of Extension will help you get one. Start a movement in your county for one. Make farming more profitable in 1922.

GOOD MARKET FOR MILK HELPS IN MANY WAYS

Did you ever stop to think of what it would mean to your community to have a good market for whole milk, in either large or small amounts at any time of the year and receive a good price for it?

A good market for milk encourages better care and feeding of the cows, thus making them more profitable. It stimulates interest in keeping more and better cows which not only brings in more money but then the manure, if properly conserved and hauled to the fields, will increase soil fertility and result in greater cheese specialist, Division of Extension.

Increasing the number of dairy cows in the herd naturally leads to diversified farming and growing leguminous crops. Practical dairy farmers practice feeding all home grown feeds possible which reduces to a minimum the time required for hauling and he receives the retail price for his home grown feed by feeding it to his cows.

Dairy cows furnish one of the best foods, milk. When made into cheese in a co-operative cheese factory it makes an exceptional food, in that it has good keeping qualities, it contains a high per centage of protein, is easily digested and economical to the customer, at the same time the farmers who produce the milk and market it in a community co-operative cheese factory have received from 31 to 50 cents a pound for butterfat during the year. Each patron receives his share of the whey which makes a fine hog feed. The community cheese factory furnishes a market for the milk in any amount at any time of the year at a good price. They make cheese that please the merchants as well as the customer, the time has passed when people think cheese of good quality can only be made in states that have a long cold winter. Any one interested in the development of a community cheese factory in their community can address the Division of Extension, Knoxville, Tenn., for further information.

Eat less meat if you feel Backache or Bladder troubles you—Salts is fine for Kidneys.

Most forms uric acid which excites and overworks the kidneys in their efforts to filter it from the system. Regular eaters of meat must flush the kidneys occasionally. You must relieve them like you relieve your bowels: removing all the acids, waste and poison, else you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sour, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment; the channels often get irritated, obliging you to get up two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids and flush off the body's urinous waste get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine and bladder disorders disappear. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys and stop bladder irritation. Jad Salts is inexpensive; harmless and makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then, thus avoiding serious kidney and bladder diseases.
